ESSENCE OF BEEF, MUTTON, VEAL & CHICKEN—BRAND AND Co.

"Although these preparations can now hardly be called novelties, we notice them on account of their great value in medical practice.

"They consist of the pure juice of the flesh, extracted by heat and clarified, but not concentrated and otherwise untouched. The juice sets to a thin jelly as clear as sherry, and the flavour of the meat is perfectly preserved. The first idea of this kind of preparation is due, we think, to Dr. Druitt, and if so, the profession is indebted to him for a very useful combination of food and stimulant. The essences can be best used cold, but may also be liquified by heat, and used as enemata. Of course they do not keep long when once opened.

"The same firm prepares concentrated Extract of Beef and Invalid Turtle Soups, both excellent in quality."

THE Company's Wholesale QUARTERLY PRICE CURRENT of DRUGS, C

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

MONDAY EVENING, 18TH FEB. 1878.

THE character of the political telegrams received since Saturday is generally accepted here as decidedly pacific, and a more hopeful tone has pervaded business to-day in consequence, although people seem generally disposed to await more definite intelligence before operating largely.

The commercial news, as usual on Monday, adds little to our knowledge of the situation. Consols are still quoted at 95¼; French Rentes at 109¼; Enfaced Rupee Paper, Fours and Fours-and a-half 81½, Fives-and-a-half 89½. The London General Produce Markets are all unchanged, and Wheat to arrive is as last quoted, but Seeds to some extent show the prevalence of more pacific views, Calcutta Linseed to arrive being quoted 1s., ex-Warehouse 6d., and Calcutta Rapeseed both ex-Warehouse and to arrive 9d. per quarter lower.

Indian Exchange Bank shares show a decline of 10s. in Orientals, and an advance of the same extent in Chartered on the week. Chartered Mercantile and Hongkong and Shanghai are unchanged.

Respecting the Liverpool Cotton Market, the latest news to hand up to the time of writing is the closing telegram of Saturday, which reported a steadier tone, although the sales were only 6,000 bales. The improved appearance of politics, however, will probably have exercised a better effect on the market to-day, especially as the American receipts on Saturday were on a comparatively moderate scale. The figures to date show the following comparisons:—

	1878.	1877.	1876.
Saturday's Receipts...	13,000	11,000	12,000
Total since 1st Sept...	3,370,000	3,416,000	3,303,000

Bar Silver in London on Saturday was still quoted at 54d. per oz., but by a Reuter's telegram from Washington of Saturday's date we learn that "the American Senate has adopted the "Bill rendering silver dollars a legal tender, the "maximum coinage to be four millions month-"ly." The effect of this will probably be to strengthen the position of the metal, for a time at least, but whether it will be lasting is very questionable. The maximum coinage as laid down by the Bill will be something under 10 millions sterling per annum, which is, of course, a considerable amount; but with a slightly higher range of prices, the production of America will probably pretty well meet her own requirements, still leaving the large surplus in Europe to be disposed of.

The Bank of Bombay return for the week ending on Saturday shows the following changes:—

Public Deposits at H. O.	Dec	Rs.15,53,651
Do. „ Branches	Inc. „	8,31,582
Other Deposits	Dec. „	22,84,867
Government Securities	Inc. „	91,426
Bonns	Dec. „	12,185
Bills Discounted	Inc. „	16,31,213
Cash with Correspondents	Dec. „	3,01,706
Cash and Currency Notes	Dec. „	45,16,037

These alterations unquestionably indicate a very large increase in the demand for money, mainly, too, for trade purposes, and it will be no matter for surprise if a further advance is made in the Bank's rates of interest and discount at Wednesday's Board meeting. The pressure in Calcutta is still considerable, and should the present pacific turn of affairs at Home be confirmed, we may see a material increase in the demand here.

STERLING EXCHANGE opened this morning with a steady feeling at Saturday's closing rates, but owing partly to the telegram from Washington noticed above and the unfavourable return of the Bank of Bombay, a firmer feeling became apparent during the day, and an advance of fully 1-16d. per Rupee was established, at which the Banks are more willing sellers than buyers. We quote:—

Bank Bills, on demand	...1s. 8 11-16d. to 23-32 per Rs.
Do.	6 months' sight...1s. 9 1-16d. to 3-32	„
Credits,	3 months' sight...1s. 9d.	„
Documents, 3	„ ...1s. 9 1-16d.	„
Sovereigns each	...Rs. 11 8-6

On Calcutta we have not heard of any business, and we still quote demand drafts at ½ per cent premium; 90 days' sight 1 per cent discount.

GOVERNMENT PAPER is steadier with rather more inquiry, but we have not heard of any transactions of importance. We quote Fours, Rs. 94; Fours-and-half, Rs. 94½; Fives-and-half, Rs. 102½.

The SHARE MARKET has shown increased firmness to-day, a more active business has been done, and any changes in our quotations with few exceptions are in favour of sellers. Banks are steady but unaltered, and Land Companies are unchanged except for a decline of Rs. 10 in Colaba. In Press Companies we notice an improvement of Rs. 5 in Berars and Rs. 25 in Mofussilite Spinning and Weaving Companies have all undergone an improvement, although it is difficult to assign any reason for it. An assured peace in Europe necessarily means dearer Cotton, but by no means an improvement in the demand for the manufactured article, which is depressed at present not by the state of politics but by the distress existing up-country. This is not likely to disappear until the next crops are harvested, and only then if they result well, while in the meantime higher priced Cotton can only decrease the margin for profit, or, more correctly speaking, perhaps increase the extent of loss. As we have said, however, with the exception of a decline of Rs. 20 in Alexandra and Rs. 10 in Coorla, prices are to-day Rs. 5 to Rs. 10 per share higher all round.

COTTON has been decidedly firmer here to-day. An active demand has prevailed for export, and a fair business has been done at an advance of Re. 1 to Rs. 2 per candy, although not so large as would have been the case had sellers been more disposed to meet the market. We quote now for March delivery:—

Good Broach	Rs. 263	per candy	F. P.
Do. Sinqunghasi	„ 200	„	„
Do. Oomra	„ 188	„	„
F. G. F. „	„ 181	„	„
G. F. „	„ 175	„	„
F. G. F. Dholleras (April)	„ 185	„	„
G. F. „ „	„ 181	„	„

SEEDS and WHEAT are dull, and very little has been done, sellers generally holding out as yet for previous prices.

FREIGHTS are very quiet, and the engagements reported to-day have been very limited. By Steamer for Liverpool £1-12 6 is still the current quotation, but £1-11-3 has been done to relete. By sail for Liverpool £1-15 is still quoted, but the demand even at that is very small. For Trieste and Venice a considerable enquiry exists both ready and forward at £2 7 6 payable here.

PIECE GOODS remain very dull, and we have scarcely heard of a transaction from first hands. Prices are nominally unchanged, but the firmness in Cotton may strengthen the hands of holders somewhat.

COALS are quiet and slightly easier. There are sellers of West Hartley to arrive by steamer at Rs. 18 per ton alongside without finding buyers.

THERE is, the Pioneer learns, a difference of opinion between the Viceroy and the India Office about appointing Mr. Chapman as Sir E. Bayley's successor in the Executive Council. The inconvenience of appointing another officer by the Secretary of State for India who is neither on terms of personal cordiality nor political agreement with the Viceroy is spoken of and denounced.

IT we are rightly informed, says the Indian Daily News, "the case of Mr. Alpin, late Officiating Post Master of Calcutta, against which certain reflections were made by Mr. Justice Macpherson in his Lordship's judgment in a civil suit, which was pending the decision of the postal authorities for some time past, has just been disposed of departmentally by the Director-General, or rather by the Assistant Director-General of the Post Office, and the papers will shortly be submitted to Government. By the above-mentioned decision, it appears that the aforesaid officer, who is now on leave, is to be transferred from the Chief Inspectorship to a First Grade Inspectorship of the Postal Department in Bombay, with a salary of Rs. 300 rising to Rs. 500 per mensem."

THE hearing of the suit brought by Dr. Burjorjee Dorabjee and his wife against Mr. G. W. Terry, Superintendent of the School of Art at Bombay, was concluded yesterday, being the eighth day of the hearing. Plaintiffs claimed to recover Rs. 35,000 for damage done to certain pictures the property of the wife, which were exhibited at the Bombay Exhibition of 1873, and which had been entrusted to the defendant as honorary secretary to and a member of the Exhibition Committee. Plaintiffs alleged that the pictures were given in charge of defendant at his request under a special contract made with him that they were to be returned free of any charge and in the same condition in which he received them; and that, on the close of the Exhibition, he renewed the contract and took charge of the pictures as acting Curator of the Victoria and Albert Museum, under the same terms as before. It was contended that, in giving over charge of the museum to Dr. Wellington Gray in November 1873, he neglected his duty as a bailee in not returning the pictures to plaintiffs forthwith; and that he was liable, under the terms of the special contract, for the damage subsequently done in consequence of their being stored away during the monsoon in a damp room. For the defendant the alleged special contract was wholly denied; it being urged that he had no direct personal interest in the matter, and that whatever he did was done in his capacity as a Government servant. The first important question in the case, therefore, was whether or not there was a special contract entered into by the defendant; and by direction of the Court, with the consent of counsel, the enquiry was limited to this preliminary question. His Lordship has taken time to consider his decision.

THE Panthay Prince, Hassan Ali, who has been for some years a refugee in Burma, is, on his marriage with the daughter of the Sawbwa prince, Jewan Bukt, to have his allowance increased to Rs. 450 a month, and to be given a house, rent free, to live in.

THE Straits Times makes the unpleasant statement that "kleptomania has been developing itself at Singapore among the European portion of the community in the shape of the pilfering of rare and valuable specimens of ferns and other plants and flowers from the Botanical Gardens. The committee have, therefore, resolved to make an example of the first kleptomaniac caught, and have offered a reward for information."

IT is said that the P. and O. Company are making arrangements for substantially more than a paratively moderate scale. The figures to [illegible] Kashgaria, in pursuit of the retreating Chief Bayen Hu. The China Mail says, "We are familiar with Special Correspondents' reports of European warfare, but a report by a Chinese Viceroy of the operations of troops in Central Asia is a novelty; and Tso Tsungtang's memorial is really in every way worth perusal. Intelligence has since been received of the advance of the Chinese expeditionary force as far as the cities of Aksu and Uch Turfan, which they had occupied. Hakim Khan Tura, who held possession of these places in his struggle to wrest the sovereignty of Kashgar from Kuli Beg, is believed to have surrendered them to the advancing Chinese. The Chinese General's rapid advance will excite as much admiration as surprise. But as he is now (at Ushi) some 700 miles from Turfan, which is itself nearly an equal distance beyond the Great Wall, it does appear as though he stood in terrible danger of being cut off, if Kuli Beg has one-tenth of the power or energy of his late father."

COMMENTING on the official denial lately published of the Prince of Wales's intimate relations with Sir Salar Jung, the Madras Mail accuses the Government of India of making a dead set at the Nizam's Minister, and adds:—"Our readers will naturally ask, to what 'action' of Sir Salar Jung's reference is made in this mysterious communique, and what is the nature [illegible] attempt to embarrass Her [illegible] regret we are not [illegible] curiosity. The [illegible] chment of Sir [illegible] that he has [illegible] to gain [illegible], as [illegible] Jung [illegible] pro- [illegible] ged [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] burden of speaker after speaker—"Give us this, that, and the other, or give us money to buy them."

On many points besides that of wanting money there appears to be a general agreement. The Volunteers like to have a proportion of their officers supplied from the Regular Army. They do not wish to be burdened with the heavy duties and responsibilities of field artillery, nor even cavalry; and, what is very satisfactory, they do not seem to claim a place in the front line as an army manœuvring in the field. But they ask urgently for means to drill under cover in wet weather and without being mobbed at all times. Most of them desire to be sent every year for a short time to camps of instruction, where they may not only gain knowledge, but come in contact with regular troops; for taking the meeting at the Institution as representative of general opinion, the Volunteers long to be called part of the Army, and not dissociated from it either in quarters, camps, or after-dinner speeches. In short, they claim that the steadiness with which the numbers have been kept up and the time which has been spent in rendering the force efficient have given them a fair right to ask for further development. Of course all development means expenditure of money, and as private subscriptions appear to be falling off, the Treasury is to be appealed to for the requisite funds.

The time has gone by for doubting the permanence of the Volunteer force. It exists and will continue to exist. It has survived the decline of early enthusiasm, the falling away of carpet knights and the tightening of the bands of discipline. The breaches of military manners which used to signalize all the great gatherings are now absolutely unknown, and of all the desires of the men none is more conspicuous than their wish to be really commanded. Even the cessation of the great reviews has brought no cessation of recruiting, and nothing can be plainer than the readiness of the force to lend itself cheerfully to all measures intended to increase its discipline and usefulness. All who know the Volunteers thoroughly believe that, in case of invasion, though many men must, from the very necessity of their position as workmen in arsenals, dockyards, and similar private establishments, leave the active part of the force, their places would be more than filled by new or former members, so that 200,000 soldiers—or at us say 150,000 fairly-trained men—would be available for strictly defensive purposes. As time went on and it s highly improbable that any invasion could be sudden these men would increase in soldier-like qualities and become capable of manœuvring in the field. At the worst they could act, like the Turks, behind field works or in fortresses. Their existence would render possible the absence of most of the Regular Army and part of the Militia. In short, while they are of no use for fighting purposes abroad, they would set free others whose duty lies as much outside as within the shore line of the United Kingdom. To appreciate their value we have only to imagine them suddenly withdrawn and the gap in our defences would appear irreparable. They must clearly be retained; but the question how for the country should spend money on their development is not so easily answered. For if the Volunteers want drill grounds and drill sheds, the Regular Army lacks large spaces for manœuvre in the North of England. If the Volunteers are poorly provided with great-coats, the stores for the Regular Army are by no means sufficient. If the Volunteers desire Martini-Henry rifles, the Regular Cavalry is forced to put up with an utterly insufficient number of horses, and we are obliged to ask, which ought to precede in receiving what is needful? Nay, if it comes to that, the proportion of Artillery is ludicrously insufficient for the immense force of Infantry, including Militia and Volunteers. The subject is a great one and ought not to be treated in a patch-work fashion. If all available troops in the proper proportion of the three arms were abroad fighting battles on a foreign soil, what would be the most pressing needs of those left at home? Would they be the items we have enumerated, as asked for by the Volunteers, or the gun drivers and artificers, without which both Militia and Volunteers would be helpless as an army? We do not wish to check the aspirations, natural as they are, of men who feel only their own pressing wants; but we would ask that the question should be investigated as a whole, and not merely as one which touches a solitary portion of the military forces of this country. The war strength of England is greater than it has ever been in time of peace, but it is so ill-proportioned that all calculations for exerting it in an emergency would have first to take account of the extraordinary gaps which appear in the "mobilization" sheets of the Army List. These have been the subject of much criticism in foreign countries, and stare blankly in the face any military organizer who faces the difficult problem.

During the last few months Mr. Hardy must have had occasion to look into the whole organization of the Army as a force to be used in war. He must have observed that the field army capable of being sent at short notice to defend the honour and interests of this country is, though far larger than it used to be, yet hideously disproportionate to the military estimates, and smaller than before in comparison with the immense armaments of foreign Powers. There are, nominally, more than 400,000 men under his hand and within reach for war purposes. Of these, about half are only available in case of threatened invasion, and then only as a home force. A quarter are liable to be embodied at any crisis and would furnish garrisons for the Mediterranean, as they have done before. The remaining quarter can be called upon for service in any country; but as a considerable proportion of them are recruits it is probable that not more than two complete Army Corps are really available for foreign service. Are even these two Corps capable of being turned out fully equipped at a few days' notice? If not, and if there is to be any partial application of funds, surely this is the end at which that application should be made. But if preparation for war is to be taken up in a serious spirit, it may be that the time has come for rousing the Volunteers more than hitherto, developing their organization for purely home defence, and raising the Militia to the rank of a real reserve for the Line. If the attractions to the Militiaman are not sufficient to induce him to take service rather for foreign as well as home work in case of war, it would be easy to ascertain the necessary terms and to provide the money. There can be no question that the Militia service would be extremely popular with certain classes if the battalions served at home during peace but were sure of being employed in war the difficulty of officering them would be removed, for the position of the commissioned ranks would at once become more honourable. We have often stated, and now repeat, that there is no grudging spirit in the nation or in Parliament provided the money asked for will, if granted, produce a definite increase in the national power both offensive and defensive. The country is distinctly averse from conscription, and we cannot see what necessity can ever arise for it so long as there exists a large Militia which has never been asked whether and on what terms it would consent to promise its service abroad in case of war. There might easily be three distinct forces forming part of the English Army, but all harmonized—the Regular troops for universal service at all times; the Militia, for home service in peace, for universal service in case of great war; the Volunteers, for home service both in peace and war. If these principles were adopted, all the rest of the organization would be easy, and the Volunteers would obtain that definite position and development for which they crave.—Times.

THE rapid extension of the wealth of England was well shown in a paper read by Mr. Robert Giffen at the meeting of the Statistical Society, on the 15th of January, on "Recent Accumulations of Capital in the United Kingdom." The income tax returns show that at the beginning of the century the gross income assessed in Great Britain was £115,000,000, in 1815 it was £134,000,000, in 1842, £251,000,000, and in 1853, £261,000,000. After 1855, the return is for the United Kingdom, and in that year the income assessed was £308,000,000, in 1865, £396,000,000, and in 1875, £571,000,000.

MAX GREGER'S HUNGARIAN WINES.
(Extract from the Lancet.)
We have examined the stock of Hungarian Wines in the cellars of Mr. Max Greger, of 7, Mincing Lane, the agent of the Chamber of Commerce of Vienna, for introducing the Hungarian Wines to the notice of English consumers. Those Wines, offered to the consumer through the direct Agency of the respective cultivators, are well worthy of the attention of the public and the profession. Hungary is the next great Wine producing country to France, and the export of her Wines to that country is largely increasing. A great deal of Hungarian Wine is also sold in this country under the false title of French and Portuguese Wines, better known to ordinary Wine drinkers. But they should need no such recommendation. We found in Mr. Max Greger's cellars, Wines which can favourably compare with the highest class of French and Rhenish Vintages. Amongst Red dinner Wines, the Carlowitz (dry and selected,) and amongst White Wines, the Somlau and white Edenburg (selected) are remarkable for excellence of flavour, for delicacy, and for soundness. Many of the Hungarian Wines are of high alcoholic standard, and for all medical purposes as for ordinary consumption, they are by far more worthy of notice than most of the common A dulterated French Wines offered at equal prices. A considerable quantity of Hungarian Wine is sold in England as Port Wine and as Bordeaux Wine; but there can be no reason why they should not be known in their own names. The Hungarian Wines are particularly rich in phosphoric acid, and are generally richer in alcohol than the Bordeaux Wines. The dietetical powers of these Wines are of a high order, and we commend to the Medical profession the pure Wines of Hungary as specially worthy of notice.

THE Undersigned have been appointed SOLE AGENTS in Bombay for these Wines, now in such great favour in Europe, and to introduce them in India will supply sample cases containing 1 dozen assorted kinds.
